Tax system in the Netherlands

The Dutch tax system, especially for an expat, is anything but simple. The Netherlands is a socially conscious country and you can expect to pay a substantial proportion (up to 52%) of your salary to the system. However, your personal situation (e.g. non-working partner), type of work, residency status and other assets and earnings (particularly from abroad) will considerably affect your position. In many cases, you will still be filing a tax return in your home country and will be entering the field of double taxation agreements.
